

Buying/Selling a Practice

There are a few options for buying or selling a practice:

1. Employ the good old fashion “handshake”

Pros: it costs you nothing, it is easy

Cons: not advised, you could be fleeced with no legal recourse and get nothing

2. Engage services of a “chiropractic broker” in your area or online

Pros: takes the worry of selling your practice out of your hands

Cons: the fees can be extreme for little work done

3. Contact an attorney that concentrates on contracts for the Buying and selling of a chiropractic practice (Recommended)

Pros:

*If there is a simple solution they will let you know

*You protect your assets that you have worked so hard to attain

*You get a tailor-made custom contract for the sale/purchase of a practice

*The call will cost you nothing and can save you time and money

*It is far cheaper to have a contract in place to define all the parties rights and duties than using the good old handshake in the event of a dispute

Cons:

*Buy/Sell contracts are in-depth and initial costs are higher

*In a dispute litigation costs can be extreme

Attorney Contact:

Damien Fertitta DC, Esq, and Brian Sytsma Esq. jointly operate a law firm that concentrates in Chiropractic contracts

For a free consultation:

Office: 916.543.1555

Office: 530.510.8112

Email: fertitta@law-doc.com